15: U.S. Navy--30 [8] (no date) 1944 Formosans
116, 241, 516

"There are many folkways and habits among the Formosan-Chinese which are of no importance administratively but which attract the attention of strangers on the island. These include the practice which farmers have of kneeling in the muck of the paddy fields and advancing through the rice rows on their knees, planting or weeding, instead of standing and bending or stooping to plant."